

How Do Kids Learn?

Weekly Report 26 ~ 3/25/2019 - 3/31/2019

This week in the Independent Study and Mentorship program, a routine was found within mentor visits and working on the final product. It was personally decided that lessons and curriculum based activities will continue to be created on a regular basis and used as needed within the classroom. This being to make it as easy and convenient as possible for Ms. Amy Swiney to utilize my ability to work with students one on one as necessary.

Additionally, throughout the mentor visit this week, time was spent working individually with Chinmay. This provided a lot of insight into how he processes information and how that can be used to further his learning through individualized help. This knowledge will be very beneficial in the future as time is spent working with all three students who are struggling within that class and finding ways to make their learning styles work for them, not against them.

Overall, this week served as a huge leap forward in my understanding of how children process information differently. This has resulted in a newfound excitement to use this knowledge in the future to help these students learn so they can not only just understand but excel at topics they are presented with.
